

What is the point of creating a "Protection Overlay" if it can be vacated at the request of a builder/contractor, or anyone else for that matter. Please, stop allowing builders to destroy Tennessee's natural beauty and health of local wildlife just to build a few houses.

The number of people looking for a home is balanced by the in the number of homes currently available on market. Our home has been on the market for 2 months now. It's in a desirable neighborhood, a 3/2 gorgeous home and property has been under contract once, but buyer's fell through, and the past month it's only getting looked at online.

Everytime land is cleared, it causes local wildlife to lose their homes, their lives, and sources of food and water. Once the land has been cleared and homes are sold it drives local wildlife onto the roadways trying to escape the heavy equipment and causes more people/wildlife conflict. As the wildlife searches out new homes and sources of food and water, it brings them in direct contact with people on the roadways, on their property, and at the cost of some beloved pets as they seek out food.

Do you want to be the cause of so much loss of life and homes, just so someone can build seven (7) more homes in Tennessee in an area that's supposed to be safe for the animals to live out their lives. What is the point of creating a "Protection Overlay" if it can be vacated at the request of a builder/contractor, or anyone else for that matter. Please, stop allowing builders to destroy Tennessee's natural beauty and health of local wildlife just to build a few houses.

The number of people looking for a home is balanced by the in the number of homes currently available on market. Our home has been on the market for 2 months now. It's in a desirable neighborhood, a 3/2 gorgeous home and property has been under contract once, but buyer's fell through, and the past month it's only getting looked at online. Everytime land is cleared, it causes local wildlife to lose their homes, their lives, and sources of food and water. Once the land has been cleared and homes are sold it drives local wildlife onto the roadways trying to escape the heavy equipment and causes more people/wildlife conflict. As the wildlife searches out new homes and sources of food and water, it brings them in direct contact with people on the roadways, on their property, and at the cost of some beloved pets as they seek out food.

Do you want to be the cause of so much loss of life and homes, just so someone can build seven (7) more homes in Tennessee in an area that's supposed to be safe for the animals to live out their lives.